

The maid of honor was Lisa Zeigler, friend of the couple. The bridesmaids were Meredith Wentz, friend of the couple, Lindsey Harvey, friend of the bride, Kimberly Kennedy, friend of the couple, and Ashley Blom, sister of the groom.

The bride's attendants wore satin Chambord, halter-style, tea-length dresses with chiffon overlays. They had a rose petal-colored sash and miniature lily waist bouquets. They carried clutch-style bouquets of hot pink princess roses, black magic roses, pink gerbera daisies and stargazer lilies. Their roses also glittered with crystals.

The flower girl was 18-month-old Grace Gutman, cousin of the bride. She was dressed in a dusty rose, sleeveless, full-skirted, empire gown. The tea-length gown had a voile overlay, which was accented with embroidered trim. Her sash matched the bridesmaids. She carried a satin basket of pink rose petals.

The best man was Steve Balmer, friend of the groom. The groomsmen were Paul and Johnny Maltinsky, brothers of the bride, James Blom, brother of the groom, and Jeff Zeigler, friend of the couple. The groom wore a black tuxedo with white pin-stripes and a white vest and tie. His attendants wore black tuxedos with white pin-stripes and bubblegum pink vests and ties. The groom wore a burgundy calla lily boutonniere, and his attendants wore hot pink rose boutonnieres.

The ring bearer was three-year-old Raymond Purdy, cousin of the bride. He sported a black tuxedo with white pin-stripes and a white vest and bow tie. He carried the wedding rings on a satin embroidered pillow with butterfly appliques and wore a pink rose boutonniere.

Lectors were Ryan Gutman, cousin of the bride, and Kathryn Menard, grandmother of the groom.

The mother of the bride wore an azalea-colored, sleeveless, tea-length gown with beaded, long-sleeved jacket. The mother of the groom wore a deep purple, street length silk gown featuring an empire waist. The shirred bodice had a v-neck. Both mothers wore a wrist corsage of hot pink baby roses.

The church alter was decorated with five large urns filled with flowers of various shades of pink, created by Ernie Bergman of Egypt. The pews were decorated with stargazer lilies and trailing ivy held by white and silver bows.

Dinner and dancing followed the ceremony at Minster's K of C Hall. The bride's father sang "Butterfly Kisses" to the bride. Pink, wine and white decorations filled the room with a pink butterfly theme. White lights, pink bows and white, wine and pink fabric adorned the ceiling, entry table, gift table, guests' tables and candy buffet. Pink butterfly cookies, fancy folded pink napkins and caterpillars were arranged at each place setting. Dozens of fishbowl vases filled with hydrangeas and roses in shades of pink, illuminated with submersible tea lights, were among the table decorations.

The newlyweds reside in Beaver creek. The bride teaches fourth grade at Harold Schnell Elementary School in West Carrollton and the groom is employed by the Five Rivers Metro Parks as a Park Ranger. They met via the internet.
